Crime Victims United is a 501(c)(3) designated nonprofit founded by Harriet and Mike Salarno in 1989. CVU's work restores lives shattered by crime and influences public policy related to crime victims and their families.

Crime Victims United's non-profit foundation is a unique statewide organization that helps victims and their families cope with their loss and move their lives forward.

- Providing college scholarships for victims and their children
- Giving legal assistance to all victims of crime
- Guiding victims' families through the complex criminal/civil justice system including parole hearings.
- During the pandemic CVU continued to meet in person and created a Virtual Clinic to provide services to victims in this very stressful time.

Crime Victims United Issue/Advocacy staff works daily to shape policy decisions that affect public safety budgets, sentencing and parole laws, or victims and their families. Crime Victims United evaluates, monitors and influences hundreds of legislative measures every year.

As a key staff member says, "Crime victims and their families have rights, they have resources and they matter."
